

Statement of Corporate Policy Commitment

The voluntary Customs Trade Partnership Against Terrorism (CTPAT) program was initiated by the U.S. federal government after the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, to protect America's supply chains from terrorism and to improve U.S. border security. Goulston Technologies, Inc. has been a member of this U.S. Customs and Border Protection program since May 2006.

Goulston is committed to the highest level of security in our supply chain by protecting against criminal activities such as drug trafficking, human smuggling, terrorism, and other illegal or illicit activities. Goulston has developed a security protocol that is consistent with CTPAT minimum-security criteria. We will cooperate with U.S. Customs to ensure the security of the supply chain by following these business and security practices.

Security is everyone's responsibility. All employees, visitors, contractors and business partners are educated and required to comply with Goulston's CTPAT policies and procedures. CTPAT impacts every area within our organization, as well as outside carriers and foreign suppliers. Goulston is dedicated to doing our part to keep our employees, our partners and our country safe. Thank you for your cooperation and support as we assist in this worldwide campaign to stop terrorism.
